

MULTIFAMILY MARKET OVERVIEW

RYAN ABEL, Vice President

In Q1 2023, multifamily rental prices have held steady in comparison to Q4 2022. Yet net absorption of units has been lower than expected. Vacancy rates have increased with Bay Area companies still shedding more jobs. Asking rents still remain steady moving into 2023. There's been an increase in 10+ unit buildings being put on the market and we expect that trend to continue into the 2nd quarter of this year with the amount of properties that have gone into receivership at the end of 2022 and with owners opting to sell and take profits instead of refinancing their properties given the increases of interest rates in comparison when short term debt was substantially cheaper from the last decade.
