

MULTIFAMILY MARKET OVERVIEW

KATE HUNT, Senior Research Analyst

Apartment absorption has staged a slow but strong recovery in Atlanta throughout 2023. However, continued supply deliveries have kept vacancy on the rise. At the end of Q3, Atlanta's vacancy rate stood at 10.5%, up from record lows of 5.9% just two years ago, and a robust construction pipeline will continue to lift vacancies in the coming quarters. Roughly 36,000 units are under construction in Atlanta, representing a 6.5% expansion of inventory. While total sales volume has declined since rising interest rates began complicating the lending process, investors remain confident in Atlanta's long-term potential for population growth, job growth, and subsequent multifamily demand.
